New England HOWE

Celebrating Fine Design, Architecture, and Building

Summer Means Cape Cod

An admiring look at our region's seaside treasure

C. Randolph Trainor Interiors

RANDY TRAINOR HAS ALWAYS FOLLOWED HER

passion for alpine skiing, having taught skiing and coached racing around the world. Randy became interested in interior design and architecture after taking an art history course freshman year in college.

She went on to major in art and architectural history and study abroad. While studying and skiing overseas, Randy has made it a point to visit as many beautiful structures as possible.

Though Randy has been in the interior design business for 30 years, it was when she and her husband moved to Franconia, New Hampshire, that she created a niche as the premier "alpine" designer for the second homeowner. With her numerous resources, Randy helps you create livable interiors, suited for a recreational lifestyle, whether you are simply decorating your vacation home or embarking on a construction project. She also acts as your advocate on the construction site, making sure the end result is everything you want.

WHAT IS YOUR DESIGN PHILOSOPHY?

Listen carefully to the client, find out what motivates them and why. CRT-designed rooms are not fussy and overdesigned. I design for people and their requirements, leaving room for their history, personality, and input.

WHAT IS YOUR FAVORITE CITY?

Venice—love the art and architecture and being surrounded by water. Ski villages throughout Europe. Vail—I got married on my skis at the top of Vail in January.

WHAT IS YOUR DREAM COLLABORATION?

A well-traveled client, an architect who designs for comfortable living, a contractor with a creative side, all sharing ideas and leaving their egos at home.

HOW DO YOU DESCRIBE YOUR STYLE?

Casual sophistication.
Classic, never going out of style. Comfortable furniture to sink into at the end of a long, fun day outdoors.

